

It is outrageous
that Sinclair Broadcasting is attempting to use
the free airwaves
provided at the
public's discretion
to air a blatant
election attack
aimed at the democratic candidate, John Kerry.

This is precisely
the kind of problems
inherent with the
runaway
consolidation of
large media interests. Rather than local voices
and local concerns,
we the people are
provided with
"opinions" from some hidden unnamed cabal
trying to further
their own interests.

This is outrageous
and the FCC should immediately
investigate this
betrayal of the public trust, and
strengthen the laws
protecting the American public from this type of private electioneering by
media owners.
